Mayor Gavin Newsom

San Francisco's youngest mayor in a century, Gavin Newsom brings fresh ideas and renewed energy to City Hall. He has earned a reputation as an innovator on critical issues, and his willingness to transform the status quo has become a hallmark of his Administration.

In January 2004, Mayor Newsom took a bold step to further equality by directing the San Francisco County Clerk to issue marriage licenses to lesbian and gay couples.

He has taken on homelessness and implemented a model which emphasizes housing and services, moving 6288 individuals into supportive housing or reuniting them with family or friends. In conjunction with this effort, he initiated the rebuilding of distressed public housing sites and the building of 5400 affordable homes.

In partnership with Supervisor Ammiano, Newsom launched Healthy SF, guaranteeing comprehensive, quality healthcare for all 82,000 uninsured San Franciscans. He made a historic investment of $77 million and partnered with schools to ensure all children receive quality education. Striving to take on issues that affect us globally, Newsom set green building mandates and transformed public transportation fleets to 100% green.

Born October 10, 1967 to Judge William Newsom and Tessa Newsom, Time Magazine has named Gavin Newsom one of the Best Big City Mayors. World Economic Forum named him a Young Global Leader.

President Pro-Tem Wendy Greuel

As President Pro-Tem of the Los Angeles City Council, Greuel is inspired by her belief that a responsive government and citizen participation will improve quality of life, create safer communities and a strong economy.

She believes in doing what is practical -- not political -- and is focused on making the City efficient and accountable. As Budget Committee Vice Chair, she reformed an archaic business tax system to spur economic development and create jobs for working people.

As Chair of the Transportation Committee, Greuel has banned road construction during rush hour traffic, created anti-gridlock zones to reduce traffic and improved coordination between the City's Planning, Housing and Transportation Departments.

Greuel has made preserving precious open space a top priority. She created the City's sixth largest park by purchasing 230 acres south of La Tuna Canyon, secured passage of the Scenic Preservation Corridor Plan, purchased a park adjacent to Big Tujunga wash and fought to preserve 750 acres of open space in the Verdugo Mountains.

Greuel lives in Studio City with husband Dean Schramm and 3-year-old son Thomas.
